There are beautiful homes in the Hudson Valley, and then there are properties that seem to occupy a world entirely their own. Set at one of the most extraordinary vantage points in the region, this exceptional contemporary estate presides over 135 private acres with sweeping, unobstructed views across the Hudson Valley to the Catskill Mountains. The sense of scale is remarkable: open sky, rolling land, distant mountains, and complete privacy in every direction--yet Hudson and Great Barrington are each only 25 minutes away. The residence was designed around this landscape; dramatic walls of glass frame the Catskills throughout the house, while soaring ceilings and expansive, open living spaces give the interiors a sense of volume without sacrificing warmth. Living, dining, and kitchen spaces unfold effortlessly toward the terrace and infinity pool, where the water appears to disappear into the mountains beyond. The entire home lives on a single level, an increasingly rare luxury at this scale. Two primary suites and three additional ensuite bedrooms create five beautifully private bedroom suites, equally suited to intimate everyday living or a house full of family and friends. Throughout, the architecture is sophisticated but restrained, allowing the extraordinary setting to remain the focus. And the house is only the beginning. The estate
